

Lethal Liquor Mix Noted in Youth's Death

ARCO, Dec. 29 (UPI)—A mixture of whisky and vodka was blamed to death for a 14-year-old freshman at Arco's Butte high school.

Donald Eugene Butler died from "food strangulation due to alcohol consumption," authorities reported.

The report said the teen-ager, son of an investigator, Butte County Sheriff E. W. Ward and H. C. Coley, Police Chief, stated he was an enforcement officer.

They said young Butler was with four companions of his own age on Wednesday night when he got into the car and brought out the alcoholic drink. The other youth said he had poured the two liquids into one bottle before an adult came along and stopped him, investigators reported.

The Butte youth died several hours after being taken home by his companions. They said the four other juveniles will be questioned in probate court.

Safe Smashed By Sledges to Rescue Youth

PRINCETON, N.J., Dec. 29 (UPI)—Princeton University students here have uncovered a buried ancient Greek city in Sicily with a market place reportedly rivaling a modern American shopping center.

University diggers unearthed the city in the sparsely settled interior of Sicily, the university said.

Archaeologist Dr. Richard Stillwell, also a university archaeologist, has conducted excavations at the site since 1953.

The name and history of the city remain mysterious, but the archaeologists believe the city was built around 500 B.C. and had a population totaling 30,000 in the peak of its development.

Stillwell said the city was about three square miles was abandoned before 210 B.C. The Romans never invaded Sicily, he said.

The boy, Erich Chmiele, squirmed through a 16-inch aperture which had been cut in the floor of the hammer after attempting to work the lock had failed. The safe was newly installed in the Bollermakers Union building under construction.

Police Sgt. John Fehner said the youth cut off curiously locked a sign in the safe after reading a sign on its door which said, "push this paper and you can't get locked in."

The plunger didn't work. Workmen said a particle of debris from the mechanism may have jammed the mechanism.

Atmos. Given

Chmiele, 15, and Edward Vickerman, 16, got the alarm immediately. The boys then tried to barricade their houses with carpets piled at the doors.

But said Mrs. Odilia Jenney, who lives just west of town, the vandals began breaking up through the drain and squirted all over the place.

Men finally diverted the river of vinegar and began pumping out collars.

Geologist Unpaid For Map Theft

FRUITLAND, Dec. 29 (UPI)—A male geologist accused of stealing a valuable survey map from Gulf Oil corporation because he was promised a 10-cent cent for his theft, an attorney said today.

Alexander Cooper, counsel for the geologist, said the man, identified as a geologist for the oil company, was on hand from Kellogg, Rupert, Mountain Home, Emmett, Twin Falls, Stanley, Ridge, and Nampa.

Cooper said the man was victimized by the smooth talk of a thief.

"Smile is taken in by some fast talkers and get nothing in return," Cooper said. "There's a lot more to life than what has come to the surface."

Half of Fund Reported for Sale of Seals

Half of per cent of the amount needed to carry on the 1957 program of the Twin Falls County thermometer seal collection had been received Friday from the organization's Christmas seal sale.

J. O. Pumphrey, association treasurer, says the seals have been received in Twin Falls and in Meridian and from Murtaugh. He pointed out that the sale of seals in Kimberly, Pocatello, Burley and Caldwell is expected to put the amount over the $10,000 received in 1956.

Pointing out the seal sale is the only means of supporting the organization, Mr. Pumphrey says it is expected the county association would then be required to draw on reserve funds to carry out the 1957 program.

Of the amount received by the county association, 50 per cent must be turned over to the state organization and a part of that given to national headquarters to stimulate the program.

He said, he expected to have a final figure shortly after Jan. 1.

A divorce was given Mrs. Barbara Fife from Richard Dale Fife of Twin Falls. The judge approved an agreement whereby the mother would have custody of the two minor children and the father would contribute to their support. The mother and the father have custody during a summer vacation period.

"Untapped Potential"

By RALPH WILEY
(Pastor, Valley Christian Church)

Within each man, woman, boy or girl there is a potentiality which is waiting there to be used, to be developed, to be mined and made useful. Try as we might, it is not easy to use our potentialities to the fullest. The power of the globe, it gives off energy in the form of water, wind, etc., can move mountains from outside of ourselves.

There is a great power in man which in its operations in the equatorial waters. It operates in the air current to be set up.

Multiply this thousands of times and it is evident the power of the sun on the earth can move mountains. The energy is drawn up in this way, so we realize that a single hurricane spends as much energy as contained in hydrogen bombs.

If the heat of the world had no currents, they would prove to be stagnant ponds of water, making life untenable on the land. The wind and water, which are the result of the hot equatorial sun. They abstract outside of itself, the ocean receives power from the sun and to be blotted out need of a current.

From this example we can begin to imagine the source of the power needed to change human life. Unfortunately there is an absence from us today, we remain in ignorance of our full potential.

We become stagnant when there is no force to stir us up like the wind and water.

When a person is found to be grumpy, irri-tatable, full of sarcastic statements, unhappy with himself and with his surroundings, he is like a hill that has fallen on other people, who thinks all concern for the other fellow is a "lot of bother." This person has created a stagnant life for himself.

God, who is the wind and water, has given him a blessing instead of a curse.

But find a person who is generous,

happy, kind, forgiving wrongs done

to him, who loves others,

and who is a friend to all,

he is like a hill that has fallen on other people, who thinks all

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

On Christmas day Mr. and Mrs. James J. Wilson, Buhl, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were married in Grand Falls, Idaho, in 1926. He was 21 when she was 17. In 1915 they formed the family into the city. Wilson served as police chief until 1922 when he retired to work at his hobby of painting.

Three years ago he was confined to a wheelchair but continued to work at his hobby while Mrs. Wilson did his housework.

After they learned to go down hill skiing, the Wilsons soon developed other skills. Wilson's idea of forming the family into the ski club was developed and today's skier is an accomplished performer, combining waxed boards to produce speed that would have scared the daylights out of the inventors of that means of travel.

Skiing has revolutionized winter clothing. Painter claims. Skiers have proved hairy clothing is not necessary to stay warm in winter.

Some people have a mistaken idea that skiing is for youngsters. Painter continues. As an example, he can ski in 1930 when he was 10 years old and still gets winter exercise. He can go to Magic Valley or Sun Valley in the fall and enjoy a world that is denied non-participants.

The country is required to have around five thousand skiers even though the count probably never has been made in Magic Valley, a safe assumption probably would be the valley, with four half-tracks, all areas of the valley, the first. Yet even though the sport is obviously popular, he now knows its origin.

Boy Painter, TWIN FALLS, one of the valley's pioneer skiers, said he thinks the sport is a couple thousand years old. Jack LeClair, Twin Falls, also instilled the magic mountain.

Arthur L. DeVolter, Twin Falls public librarian, said he didn't know anything else about the history of skiing. He did, however, find some books which jointly and severally point out there is considerable doubt on the subject. A prehistoric sled was found in a cave not long ago and the date for it was set arbitrarily at 2000 B. C.

"Skiing, however, was used solely as a means of transport," he said. "It was not until when a few Norwegians began sliding downhill on wooden slabs for sport. United States took it up in the 1920s and Canada came along in 1930."

While residents in a few localities took up skiing as a sport in this country between 1930 and 1932, getting quite a bit of exercise in the process, incidentally, was the same year Painter began to ski on the slopes of Mt. Harrison near ALBION.

Sons of the pioneers along with Painter on Mt. Harrison also began to ski. Pauline Wilson, Mrs. Thompson and Rose Youmans, all BURLEY, when Painter moved to Twin Falls in 1937 he helped organize the Twin Falls Ski Club and became the organization's first president.

Dr. Frank McAtee, Twin Falls, the chairman of the club, was recruited by Painter with developing the club into an active organization.

In his 22 years of skiing, Painter has seen tremendous progress in the sport, he said.

Five thousand years ago skis were pretty crude affairs and one type of ski did not fit another, he said. The other skis were for hunting and other work, the weaker using the long, broad ones for the load and the shorter, narrower ones.

Early skiers used the slab as a means of walking on snow and climbing hills. They avoided downhills and would not dream of the way to keep from sliding down.

Now the opposite is true. Most skiers try to find the easiest way to the top of a mountain so they can slide down.

While there was some evolution in skis between 3000 B. C. and 1900 A. D., most of the progress had come in the last 60 years. When Painter started to ski, equipment still was pretty crude, he recalls. For the most part, ski harnesses consisted of a leather strap.

Painter believes he bought the first pair of ski boots ever owned in Early skiers used the slab as a means of walking on snow and climbing hills. They avoided downhills and would not dream of the way to keep from sliding down.

Now the opposite is true. Most skiers try to find the easiest way to the top of a mountain so they can slide down.

Social Security Is Featured for Grange Parley

Questions on social security for the Grange were answered by Lester Young, manager of the Twin Falls social security office, at the Knoll Grange meeting Friday night.

The theme, "In the Still of the Night," was carried out in the decorations. The hall was decorated with clippings of sheet apparel with heraldic silhouettes. Three large angel hair stars formed the centerpiece. Clouds of angel hair and twinkling lights formed the background. Large snowflakes and large snowmen flanked the sides.

Black silhouettes lined the side walls. Trees, white, poinsettias and greenery added to the atmosphere.

The handstand carried out the same motif with a silver piano and a large floor lamp in the background.

During the meeting the three honored queens, Martha Woodfall, bellevue No. 19, and Anna Irwin, bellevue No. 43, were crowned and received their crowns from Sue Ellen Webb, past honored queen, bellevue 19, and Mickey Hubert, bellevue No. 43. Bellevue officers, holding lighted tapers, formed a background for the ceremony.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Becoming familiar with a situation is the first step to tolerance. If they are afraid of other people, this may lead to malignant attitude and consequent behavior, the result of which is satanism.

Parents frequently build this attitude in relation to their children. Being accustomed to directing them, they overlook the fact that these children are not their permanent possession but are only good for a time.

The parents, however, take charge of their children during the years of helpless infancy. That is what allows them to feel the children belong to them, and will be dependent upon them for care and protection. But it is not so. Nature has ordained that every child born into this world must be an individual.

Children begin to indicate this very soon after they begin to walk and begin to reflect upon what they want. This is the first signal for the individual's wants apart from his needs. Needs are attended to by the parents, but individual wants are not so likely to be noticed and considered.

Wants are individual matters and children in the stage of growth feel keenly about them. When wants are disregarded, overlooked, forgotten, feel hurt, although they have no words to tell the story. They

Whether or not that want is to be granted is the parents' problem, and the way of agreeing or refusing is important in the relationship between the parents and the children.

It is at this stage of development that children take their first steps away from home and parents. This is a stage which is not the fruit of the earth.

Parents are asked to consider whether or not that want is to be granted.

ENGINEERS WIN IN GATOR BOWL; WEST EARNS SHRINE VICTORY

Georgia Tech Is 21-14 Victor Over Rugged Pitt Team

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Georgia Tech's alert yellow Jackets outlasted Pittsburgh's powerful, determined Panthers 21-14 in a bruising Gator bowl football game Saturday, giving coach Bobby Dodd his eighth bowl victory without a loss. The triumph was Tech's second over coach Jimmy Michelson's Panthers this year. Tech defeated Pitt 7-0 in New Orleans' Sugar bowl last New Year's Day.

North Squad Wins 14-0 in Blue-Gray Tilt

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP)—An unexpectedly powerful Yankee attack and the constant threat of a passing offense gave the Northern team a 14-0 victory over the Southern squad in the Blue-Gray football game Saturday in the Blue-Gray football game Saturday.

Ignoring their press clippings, the Yankees stuck to the ground and almost sent quarterback Jimmy Hunter of Missouri and fullback Don Vicks of Ohio State hanging the Rebel line for consecutive gains.

The passing ability of Hunter and Purdue's Lenard Johnson added to the solid Northern invasion.

Even though in a negative sense, the Confederates had to spread their defense to guard against the pass and the run.

That opened the way for the Blue ball carriers.

Jim Podlesy, a hard-running back from Central High, had the most spectacular play of the game with an 80-yard touch down run on a second period punt return.

John H. Podelsy retrieved it, and followed his blockers down the field.

Vicks had made the first touch down early in the second period.

From the 10, he ran the 80-yd.

It was the 14th score.

The Rebels drove the Yankees into the Northern period but ran out of steam when a fourth down pass from quarterback Mackie Prickett of South Carolina intended for end Tom Elliott of Auburn was knocked down.
